FALL CONCERT SERIES BEGINS ON SEPTEMBER 18

Muscatine Art Center to host a variety of performances this fall

MUSCATINE, Iowa - The Muscatine Art Center will welcome an array of musicians for a series of free performances this fall. The opening concert will be held in the Muscatine Art Center's Music Room at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, September 18.

The first concert features the music of Francis Verba, a French classical guitarist with a wide and colorful repertoire of European and Latin American music. Verba plays a unique, custom-made guitar, and his revolutionary method for holding the instrument allows him to express profoundness and purity in his sounds, enchanting all of the senses.

"The Francis Verba concert has been many, many months in the making," Melanie Alexander, Muscatine Art Center Director, said. "We are delighted to share his talents with the Muscatine community. His performance promises to be an experience unlike any other the Muscatine Art Center has offered before."

In addition to the performance, concertgoers will be treated to the visual delights of painted portraits by Cecile Houel, whose portrait of the Dalai Lama was included in the Muscatine Art Center’s 2020 invitational exhibition, "Hard Won, Not Done".
